Weather- Practice making small talk about the weather by asking someone one of these questions:

- Lovely day, don't you think?
- Looks like rain is in the forecast.
- Did you order this beautiful weather?

Arts and Entertainment- Arts and entertainment topics that are good conversation starters include:

- Movies and television shows
- Popular restaurants
- Popular music
- Books

Examples of things you might be asked are:

- Are you reading any great books? I could use some recommendations.
- Are there any podcasts you love?
- Have you tried any new apps or games lately that you really like? I could use some suggestions.

Sports -Sports topics are good things to talk about with others and can include:

- Favorite or local teams
- Sporting events
- Tournaments or championships

Family-People are likely to ask you about your family. Conversation openers about family may include:

- Do you have any brothers or sisters?
- What are your favourite free time activities?
- Where does your family live?

Food

- Have you tried any new restaurants lately?
- What's your favorite meal to cook at home?

Hobbies- Not only will you have something to talk about, but having a hobby will give you a chance to meet others with similar interests.

Hometown - In a small talk situation, you might be asked about your hometown.

How to talk about your hometown in English

Every town and city has at least one landmark. So you can talk about that. These are the kind of landmarks you can find in our towns:
Churches
A library
A town hall
A well-known pub
A town square
A park
A statue or monument of some kind

Once you identify what these landmarks are, then you talk about them.
My hometown has a very old church in the centre. I never go there but I can hear the bells ringing on a Sunday for the Sunday service. There is a cemetery next to the church which always looks a bit creepy at night.
We have a nice library in our town. It is in a nice old building. It's a great place to relax and read. They have free newspapers too.

There's a pub called..... It's a pretty quiet place.....

There's a shopping centre in the middle of my hometown. It's kind of boring but me and my friends go there because it's the only place for us to go on a Saturday evening.....
